Witnessing Iqbal's Shaheen by Masood Syed, Mission Viejo CA

Soon, even more people will change their minds when they realize that we are witnessing Iqbal's Shaheen. I was inspired to write a poem for Imran and the cause of PTI, and here I am sharing the last verses to remind those who have doubts about success. The fight against the tides will be helped by the mechanisms triggered by his and our Yaqeen. This is a tribute to Imran Khan and his strong will:

دل میں سلام ہو، یقین کی تاروں کا عمل اس تار کا موچہ
خدا سوچوں کو سکھلا دے گا ان کے تار خدا تم کو

This may be the time when decades of complaining in our living rooms, drawing rooms, schools and street corners about the system has made it our responsibility to seize the opportunity to change the conversations among us and in our heads into hope and optimism.

I wish to be further inspired and hope that masses of Pakistan are inspired by this man who is showing us a glimpse of what Allama Iqbal was expressing. I am not interested in giving Imran a chance simply because we have no other choice. I am interested in him because his integrity and execution finally became visible to me. What I perceived as his arrogance turned out to be his resolve to succeed. He is a leader who has put his integrity on the line. If he loses his integrity, he will have to answer to himself before he has to answer to others and to his God.

We've heard our whole lives that Iqbal is a poet philosopher but never realized that Iqbal's message needs to be lived not merely listened to. I believe that we are witnessing a phenomenon where Iqbal's poetry can be seen in action. Allama Iqbal pointed to the four elements needed to complete a Musalmaan:

قہاری و غفاری و قدوسی و جبروت
یہ چار عناصر ہوں تو بیتا ہے مسلمان

Imran is moving in the direction where it appears that he is displaying a fair degree of all four elements. If the phenomenon is real and when the masses become inspired, the sky will be the limit. Folks like me would be begging to be back in Pakistan instead of people trying to leave Pakistan. Folks deserve to make up their mind at their own pace. So all I hope for is that we keep the possibility of examining our beliefs and choices and be willing to change them if it is worth it. Once you believe, feel free to be the annoying believer who inserts a possibility of hope in every conversation where hope is missing and the elusive "system" is being blamed for all the evils.

Are we too wise for our own good? Being foolish and naive is a gift that we give up too early in our lives. By the time we start to learn right from wrong, we are too rigid to question our beliefs. Most often our actions, our thoughts, what saddens us, what we love are all driven by our logical wisdom. We tend forget the power of persistent action that is fueled by a true belief. To many of us "wise people", Imran appeared naive about politics. I believed it too until I realized that I have been reading the wrong script. Imran is an Iqbal's Shaheen and my script did not have that chapter. To us, the wise people, he appeared wrong because we did not know that the rules of gravity did not affect him the same way. Rules and limitations of society did not affect his resolve the same way. To us Imran appeared naive and arrogant for his lofty ideas about changing the system.

This time a "foolish" friend of mine with his annoying habit of optimism and a "naive and impractical" Imran Khan who is ruining a perfectly fine working system for politicians by introducing the "in-swing" of integrity gave me an opportunity to be naive and foolish again. I have no intention of handing this gift back. If you ever get it, run with it no matter how hard the environment and society tries to turn you into a wise person again.
